Barvecue Smokehouse plant-based “meats”

We’re excited about two new products in frozen from Barvecue Smokehouse: classic BBQ and carnitas vegan “meats”! Founded in 2017 in North Carolina, Barvecue Smokehouse now boasts the world’s largest plant-based smokehouse. These two “pulled pork” style meat replacements are a tasty addition to tacos, burritos, tamales, bowls, and salads, and pack 9 to 10 grams of protein per serving.

Heavenly Hunks brownie bites

Since first arriving on shelves in 2013, Minnetonka based Heavenly Hunks has been a favorite, decadent treat for those who want to eat clean and have dessert. Now they’ve expanded into brownie bites, too! These soft, delectable chocolate cubes are so rich and flavorful, you might forget they’re vegan and gluten-free.

Fancypants Baking Co. bite-sized cookies

Founded in 2004, Fancypants Baking Co. has a thing for quality and sustainability. The oat flour used is dried and milled from the oat pulp left from making oat milk, which is brought to the bakehouse by an Upcycled Certified partner. By partnering with Farm Powered, any broken cookie pieces and crumbs that don’t make it into the final product are converted into carbon-negative renewable natural gas.
